ABOUT THE COLLEGE:

M.D.K.G. College started its journey on 8th July, 1963 under the able leadership of noted Oriental scholar, Dr. Jyotiraj Das, initially offering classes in DEBE College campus, which started in the present campus in 1965. Starting with a meagre 215 students, the college now has over 1000 students. Initially offering education only in the Arts stream, the institution added another feather to its cap by starting the Science stream in 2016. The empowerment of students through a holistic approach towards their overall development is the motto of the college. The college has been accredited by NAAC with B grade in the 3rd cycle of assessment. Perennially striving for the pinnacle of women's education in Upper Assam, the college has proudly stepped into its 60th year of glorious existence this year.

CONCEPT NOTE

The fast changing academic scenario has made research an important and almost mandatory component of academics. Along with research, publication of research papers is another critical feature which makes the whole idea of research, especially for in-service academicians, a stressful affair. Especially publication in reputed journals is a long and cumbersome business. Under these circumstances, whether intentionally or unintentionally, research ethics are often violated which not only leads to further mental stress but more importantly lead to insignificant research which does not lead to knowledge production. This workshop is meant to provide avenues and ways to both fresh academicians and in-service academicians to find better ways of doing research and more importantly ethical means of publication in journals.
